Antilishmanial

Lishmania is a vector-borne protozoan parasite primarily affecting dogs

- Transmitted by sand fly: Phlebotomus
- Found in macrophages

Types of Media

Enriched	Extra nutrients (blood, serum, yok, etc.) – for fastidious agar, serum agar, chocolate agar
Selective	Solid agar – Suppress growth of some while allow growth of others Mannitol agar, MacConkey agar, SS Agar
Enrichment	Liquid agar – increase the relative concentration of some tetrathionate broth, Selenite-F broth
Differential	Allow differentiation of different classes – Blood agar, hemolytic bacteria
Special	Useful for specific bacteria – PLO for mycobacterium, leptospira
Transport	Useful for transport of samples – maintains sample integrity and prevents unwanted growth of undesirable/contaminant bacteria

The causative organism of Siderpox is same as that of
